

ON THE COM TRAIL

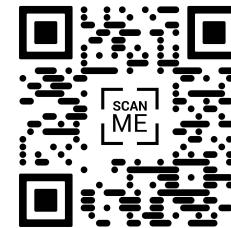

The 2022-2023 academic year began with a visit to Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine, which was attended by several members of the NBOME Board, and included a celebration of the five-decade legacy of service of John Thornburg, DO, PhD, to the NBOME.

In addition, the NBOME held an item-writing best-practices workshop at Oklahoma State University College of Osteopathic Medicine at the Cherokee Nation (OSUCOM Tahlequah) at their request, which included diversity, education, and inclusion initiatives, and presented Medical Professionalism and Professionalism Self-Regulation to Rocky Vista University College of Osteopathic Medicine's (RVUCOM) Academic Medical & Leadership Track students.

Each visit is preceded by research into any recurring issues a college of osteopathic medicine (COM) may have so that it may be discussed during, and is followed by careful consideration of all feedback and any necessary follow up with appropriate NBOME personnel. Each campus receives a customized presentation based on its unique needs.

SOME POST-COM VISIT SURVEY COMMENTS FROM PARTICIPANTS:

“Perfect intro to thinking about COMLEX and the road to being a DO.” –OMS-I

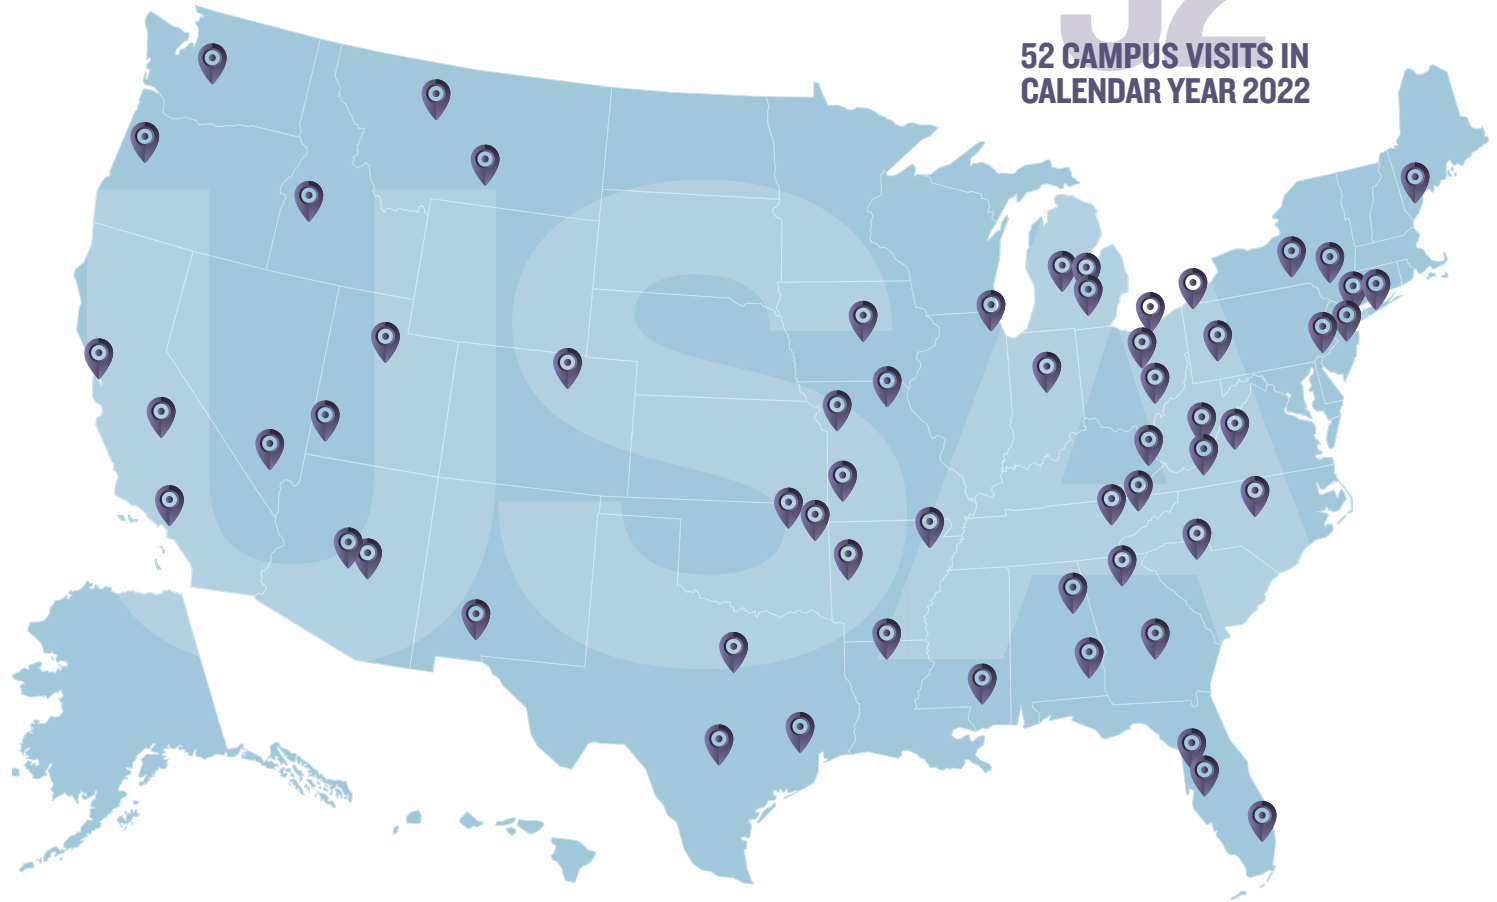

“I appreciate all the advocacy thus far and I still encourage we try and tear down those barriers. Thanks for today’s discussion!” –OMS-II

“The best part was a focus on the pre-submitted questions. Answering these questions succinctly and demonstrating the nature of the question is the most highly valued dimension of the visit. We appreciate the follow-up.” –COM leadership member
